

CULTURAL COMPETENCY TRAINING

UAMS Northwest is now offering cultural competency training for healthcare providers. General cultural competency training includes a discussion surrounding the relevance of cultural competency in health care, interactive learning activities, and cross-cultural communication tactics. Participants will learn the essentials of culturally competent care and how to best serve patients from diverse backgrounds.

Additional trainings in caring for Marshallese or Hispanic/Latino patients are available as well and will be co-presented by members from both communities who will be available for Q &A following the session.
